

I am an English cradle Anglican although, having spent many years in both Scotland and the USA, I have experienced a variety of clerical management systems. In Scotland I was on both my Diocesan and General Synods and found the work very satisfying.

I have been living in Spain for twenty-seven years and am very involved in the running of my Chaplaincy where I am a Chaplaincy Warden and Reader. I am a Lay Rep. to the Deanery Synod.

While I am, perhaps, a little conservative in my view of change, I believe in organic change for practical and logical reasons; never change for its own sake. An organisation that does not change and evolve stagnates and withers. I believe wholeheartedly in the democratic system by which, after reasoned debate and God's guidance, sound decisions may be made.

I am retired after a wide-ranging career, mainly in Civil Engineering, and my main occupations outside the Church are running a local branch of an international charity and choral singing, and I am involved in the local community, and in my spare time I love cooking and gardening.
